Graduate Management Training Scheme

The NHS Graduate Management Training Scheme will open for applications around October 2014, for people to join us in September 2015. Competition will be fierce, and that's just the beginning of the hard work. But one thing is easier than ever – interacting with us and discovering more.

Our dedicated Facebook and Twitter accounts bring you all the latest news and views. What's more, you can join the live conversation – with current graduates and alumni, the recruiting team, and others who are considering a career in the NHS. We want you to get involved.

By liking us on Facebook and following us on Twitter, you'll enjoy unique opportunities to explore the scheme, up close and personal. Find out what our trainees have been up to this week. Chat with them about their experiences. Plug in to real-time updates about the scheme and recruitment process. Ask questions. And perhaps most importantly, get a real idea of whether you've got what it takes.

You see, our Graduate Management Training Scheme is a uniquely demanding experience. It calls for equally exceptional individuals. Committed, passionate people with the confidence to tackle challenges head on. People who care about making a difference for patients, and who have the intelligence & tenacity not only to identify what can change, but to make it happen.

In return, we'll offer you a range of academic, professional and development opportunities from some of the best learning providers in the UK designed to provide you with a well-rounded learning package to enhance your personal and leadership development.

The scheme is available across four specialist streams:

Finance Management

General Management

Human Resource Management

Informatics Management
